– The Real Meaning of Christmas –

Jordan and Jessica are twins who look forward to Christmas Day every year. This year was a great Christmas, too! This morning, they opened all kinds of beautiful presents under the tree. Jordan got the scooter he's always wanted, and Jessica got a jewelry box where she can store all her special necklaces. It's been so much fun! Plus, they get to eat the candy out of their stockings without eating any vegetables first. Christmas is awesome!

While they were still cleaning up the wrapping paper explosion in the family room, the phone rang. It was Grandma! They each picked up a line to talk to Grandma at the same time and excitedly told her about all their presents and candy.

"Well, that's what Christmas is all about—presents and candy," she said. Jordan and Jessica stopped and looked at each other. They knew that their Grandma was not a Christian, and they knew in their hearts that Christmas was about much more than presents and candy.

What should Jordan and Jessica do?

- A. They should share with their grandmother that even though they like their presents and candy, they believe that Christmas is about celebrating the birth of Jesus and how much He loves us.
- B. They should tell their grandmother that they agree with her and avoid talking about Jesus.
- C. They should end the call and go back to playing with their toys.

The correct answer is A.
